PLAN M'DOWELL MEMORIAL WEEK

Kentucky Women's Club Asked to Join in Nationally Honoring Compposer.

Frankfort, Ky., Jan. 16.—Kentucky clubs will join with many organizations of the country during the week of January 21 in the observance of McDowell Memorial Week, according to an announcement sent out by Mrs. H. V. Chesney, Frankfort, chairman of the Fine Arts Department of the Kentucky Federation of Women's Clubs. Mrs. McGhesney has written some of the various of Kentucky asking them to join in observing the date of the death of Edward McDowell, "America's greatest composer of music."

The music division of the General Federation of Women's Clubs, under the chairmanship of Mrs. Marx E. Oberndorffer, Chicago, has outlined the plan for observing the week. The week containing January 21, the date of the composer's death, will be observed by orchestras and in schools according to present plans. Letters have been sent to conductors of orchestras asking them to devote one program during the week to McDowell music Similar letters have been sent to motion picture theaters and to organizations in the State which have music as part of their programs.

"The public schools and Educational institutions are expected to do their part in making this celebration an aid to musical appreciation," said Mrs. McChesney in her statement to the clubs. "Every woman's club in Kentucky is urged to observe this at a date most convenient if the week of January 21 can not be observed. Most club meetings have some special music as a feature of each program, and if nothing pretentious can be arranged the music on these occasions can be McDowell music, attention being called to the memorial and a brief biography of the composer being given.

"Many Americans who know of Edward McDowell and his wonderful genius, do not tknow he was compelled to lay down his work at the age of 42, when but at the beginning of the greatness he might have achieved. The McDowell Colony of Peterborough, New Hampshore, has been founded to perpetuate his memory and to encourage the musical talent of America.

"The Federated Women's Clubs of Kentucky are asked to take advantage of this opportunity to herald the slogan of its Music Division, 'Let us make good music popular and popular music good.' Let us put into practice our motto for this year, "Hear America First."

BAPTISTS' LAST MEETING TONIGHT

Rev. Gibson Will Close Successful Revival—Many Conversions Are Recorded

With the preaching of his powerful sermon, "God's Attitude Toward Sinners," the series of revival meetings which have been so ably conducted by Rev. Finley F. Gibson at the First Baptist church will come to a close tonight.

'Almost home, but lost" eloquently and pathetically describes the condition of thousands, said Rev. Gibson in his sermon last night. There are many whose lives are fairly upright and who are considered good people but they have not the all-important grace of God which is necessary to help them finish the last lap of the race.

He compared such a life to a large and apparently capable, British steamer which started for a voyage around the world. Her flags were proudly unfurled at the various cities visited and it seemed as if the vessel would have no difficulty in successfully completing the voyage. But when she was only thirty miles from the harbor which marked the end of the long trip, her power failed and she was thus prevented from reaching the goal. It is thus with men and women; they often fail in the last stretch.

The service resulted in seven additions in membership being made to the church. A large crowd was present, the auditorium and balcony being filled to capacity. A large delegation from Pineville was present at this service.

The song service conducted by Fred Scholfield was the best yet. The ladies trio composed of Mrs J. W. Charlton, Mrs. Cecil Owsley, and Mrs. T. H. Hill sang "Sometime, Somewhere." The congregation responded liberally in the general singing under the leadership of Mr. Scholfield.

Special arrangements have been made to make this evening's music service the most enjoyable of the entire series. The Ladies Trio, The Hoe Brothers Quartette and Mr. Scholfield will sing. Numerous requests for favorite songs have been made and these will be sung during the forty minute's music service.

A large crowd and successful meeting are expected tonight in view of the fact that the series comes to a close with this service

MIDDLESBORO FIRE DEPT. IS INADEQUATE

Fire Prevention Men Criticise Local Hazards, Say City's Standing May Be Lowered and Insurance Increased

ADVISE NEW ORGANIZATION IN FIRE DEPARTMENT

That fire protection and prevention conditions in Middlesboro are very poor was the consensus of opinion of the members of the Kentucky Fire Prevention association, which met in the city this week. The matter was discussed at a meeting of the association with local insurance agents yesterday afternoon and Capt. Henry Stilz, of the Kentucky Actuary Bureau, is taking the matter of fire protection up with the mayor and fire chief today.

"Although many fires may be prevented," Capt. Stilz said, "yet some cannot, and it is necessary to have ample fire protection to combat such fires. The Kiwanis Club and citizens of Middlesboro are making a great effort to make this city a safe place in which to live, and fire protection should be the first point they consider.

"The fire department here is very inadequate," he continued. "There is no organized fire department, no alarm system, no high pressure stream appliances, no long ladders, and only fifty-eight hydrants to supply water protection for this whole city. The people here do not realize what a helpless condition they would be in if a fire broke out in a hotel, or a building where there were a great many people.

Chief Makes Recommendation

"I am recommending the following things to the mayor," he went on: 'An organized fire department with no less than four full time men on duty all the time, and with a volunteer department of twelve men ready to answer every call. The fire chief should be sent to a training school where he can learn fire-fighting and life-saving methods. Then an improved alarm system should be installed and an aerial truck is much needed, equipped with ladders and latest fire-fighting devices, there should be more hydrants and more minor equipment, as a deluge set, hose hoist, burst hose jackets, clay pipes, life nets and waterproof covers."

The Fire Prevention Association members inspected all business houses, churches, hotels, schools, and like buildings in the city during their stay here, looking toward preventing fire a nd saving lives. The inspection included a report of the buildings' condition and a booklet was left with the owner of each place, calling attention, by number, to the fire hazards at each location.

Association Meets Yesterday

The association members held a meeting with the local insurance agents at 4 p. m. yesterday for the purpose of talking over the possibilities of fires in Middlesboro and pointing out defects in the fire department. It was brought out that while Middlesboro is now in class 7 for insurance, as placed by the rating of 1913, if the city was rerated now it would fall to 8 or 9, raising the insurance rates accordingly This is an unfortunate condition considered with the fact that Louisville is in class 2. J F Ramey, state insurance commissioner, addressed the association and told the local agents that he was in accord with the state auditor to furnish Middlesboro with information to keep the city in the same class, however, and to help lower the hazards and insurance rates accordingly.

F. G. Snyder, president of the Fire Prevention Association, spoke at the Manring Theatre last night on "Fire Prevention," and a film was shown there illustrating how a fire may be started and the havoc and endangering lives it may cause.

H. E. Verran, who has been ill from influenza for about a week, is still reported seriously ill.

PINEVILLE PEOPLE AT REVIVAL HERE

Over Sixty Come to Hear Trigg Thomas Last Night—Church Is Packed

In spite of a pouring rain, the First Presbyterian church was crowded last night to hear the famous evangelist, Dr. Trigg Thomas, and all the available chairs in the church were necessary to seat the throng. Sixty visitors came from Pineville, as a tribute to the preacher, and they were unstanting in their praise of the man who did so much for that city.

The preacher took as his text "Not by Might nor by Power, but by my Spirit, saith the Lord Jehovah."

Then dramatically he told the wonderful story of Zurubbabel and King Cyrus, and the return of the pilgrim slaves after seventy years of exile in a far land. With art unsurpassed he described the bondage of those proud Hebrews, who were sent into exile because they had forgotten God.

"If you have disobeyed God," he thundered at his audience, "If you have disobeyed God, don't squeal when the penalty comes upon you; if you have broken his commands with your eyes open, don't find fault when the blows of the Almighty are hurled from the ramparts of heaven upon your sinning head. God speaks and tells you, and warns you, and if you disobey, what do you expect but punishment anyway?"

In picturesque language he told the story of Gideon and the famous 32 men, and said

'Gideon was a brave and fearless general of the army of God. The enemies of Jehovah were in the plain, thousands of them and they completely surrounded the army of Israel. Gideon got together 32,000 men, and God said to him as he leaned over the battlements of heaven; 'Gideon, How many men have you?—Gideon swelled his chest for he was proud of the great number; 'I have 32,000 men, Lord.' 'That is too many, Gideon, put 'em to a test and let the fearful ones go home,' and Gideon did. You can just bet those 32,000 were glad of the chance to get out of trouble and save their lives. Then Gideon was not so swelled up. God said again; 'Gideon, How many have you now? How many went home?' and Gideon looked about half the size he had before. 'I have lost 22,000 men,' he said, and God said, 'Too many yet, Gideon.' Great Scott! Only 10,000 and too many! But Gideon believed his God, so he ordered another test and when it was over he had but 300 men. Then God said, 'Gideon how many had you at first?' and Gideon said, '32,000.' 'How many have you now?' and Gideon said in a faint voice '300.' Then when God had thinned out the cowards, and those who were more interested in their own affairs than they were in the things of God, he sent Gideon into the fight, and a panic ensued and the nation was saved and the army routed. What did he find? That is was not by might, nor by power, but by God's spirit."

The meetings will be held every night including Saturday night at 7:30 beginnig with a song service under the direction of C. L. Nusbet, whose solo work is so much enjoyed during the meetings.

TIP LONG HELD TO GRAND JURY WITHOUT ANY BAIL

Tip Long, charged with the killing of Jess Brady near the Crystal mines last Monday afternoon, was bound over to the grand jury without bail at the preliminary hearing before County Judge J. S. Bingham this morning.

Several witnesses were introduced by the commonwealth who testified that the defendant had made threats that he would kill Brady. They stated that he was apparently drunk. There was no evidence introduced to prove that the deceased had a rock or any kind of weapon.

One witness testified that after Brady was shot he said that he had spoken pleasantly to Long and that the latter shot him.

No witnesses were introduced by the counsel for the defendant. He wanted to exhibit to the court certain bruises that the defendant had, however, but it was decided to get a physician to make the examination and testify in the trial court.

Motch Motor Co. Invites 1000 Farmers To This City To Learn Care And Use Of The Fordson Tractor.

MERCHANTS COOPERATE TO MAKE THIS BIG DAY.

Wednesday, January 24, will be Fordson Day for Middlesboro. At this time, the Ford Motor Co. is sending two representatives here from Cincinnati to educate the people of this section in the use and care of the tractor, and, for this occasion, the Motch Motor Co. has sent out invitations to one thousand farmers in Tennessee and Virginia to come to Middlesboro and take advantage of this.

The Manring Theatre has been leased for this day and the Fordson program will be held there. The two representatives will lecture from 10 to 12 Wednesday morning on the tractor and the benefit the people from this section can derive from its use. Then, in the afternoon, from 1:30 to 3:30, colored slides and an eight-reel moving picture will be shown illustrating the use and care of the Fordson tractor. These pictures will show the Fordson climbing mountains and performing all kinds of interesting feats.

The purpose of this Fordson Day, as planned by the Ford Motor Co., is to create interest in this tractor and to promote its sales here by showing the farmers how he can get the best out of it.

The idea of bringing the farmers to town this day has been taken up by other business concerns here who are always ready to promote a closer relation between the rural districts and Middlesboro. The hardware houses and banks in particular, as well as other concerns have entered enthusiastically into the matter of making it a big day and they are confidentally expecting five hundred farmers here for the occasion.

TRUANT OFFICER MAY GO TO LAW OVER DELINQUENTS

Legal measures wil be used against parents who keep their children out of school without excuse, according to the truant officer. It is said that there are about six cases where parents absolutely refuse to cooperate with the truant officer and it is thought that the best way to break up this practice is to bring the matter before the magistrate and have the fines provided by law administered.

Most of the cases of delinquency at present is caused by sickness. There are others where parents keep their children away from school in order that they might work at home or elsewhere. All cases are investigated by the officer on the day they are reported to him and all possible efforts are made to secure the cooperation of the parents without resorting to legal aid.

A THOUGHT

Take with you words and turn to the Lord.—Hosea 14:2.

That the spirit of man should entertain hopes and anticipations beyond what it actually knows and can verify, is quite natural. Human life could not have the scope, the depth and progress it has, were this otherwise.—Matthew Arnold.

MIDDLESBORO TO WELCOME FARMERS JANUARY 24

The business firms of Middlesboro heartily second the invitation sent out by Motch Motor Company to a thousand farmers to come to Middlesboro for a Fordson day program, January 24. The farmers are always welcome to Middlesboro, regardless of the occasion, and those who come for the programs on this day will be royally received by all.

We want the farmers to feel at home and to realize that the people of Middlesboro appreciate their coming. Middlesboro is rapidly becoming a large trade center, and the more cooperation the local merchants give the farmers in disposing of their produce, the greater the prosperity of all.

Through such great captains of industry as Henry Ford the ways of the farmer have been made easier. Not only has he developed and placed on the market in large quantities a satisfactory tractor, but he supplies employment for a larger number of workers, than any other man in the world. These men and their families have to be fed, and being well paid they in turn are able to return larger sums to the farmer as the producer. A well-paid and contented industrial world will do more for the farmer than any aid, financially or otherwise, which can be advanced by the government.

The local Ford agency is to be commended for providing entertainment and a helpful program for the farmers who will gather here January 24, and it is our hope that the day will be a great sucess.

THE EAST END STREET QUESTION AGAIN

Middlesboro citizens, especially Middlesboro automobile drivers who have solaced themselves all winter when they drove over East Cumberland Avenue by saying, "Never Mind; these streets are going to be fixed up in number one condition next spring," were rudely awakened recently upon learning that no steps to let the street contract have been made. With the details necessary for this matter only the most diligent manipulation could arrange for work to begin on this street as early as late next sprig.

Why has the business of letting this contract been delayed? Are we willing to take the excuse that the state has not prepared specifications for construcion, when we know that this is a vital matter to us and a prefunctory one to the state? Does it not seem that our city officers should have pushed this matter in every possible way that the street could be completed as soon as possible and there would be no danger of losing out on the provident state aid?

The condition of East Cumberland avenue has been Middlesboro's greatest drawback for wo years. Farmers from Tennessee and Virginia who would naturally come here to trade have been kept out of the town beause o f the difficulty of crossing this piece of street. Tourisits through this section of country, otherwise favorably impressed, have gone away to give Middlesboro a black eye because of the condition of her streets. And so it has gone on.

Finally, when extreme pressure has been brought to bear an ordinance was passed authorizing the reconstruction of East Cumberland avenue and Fitzpatrick avenue. Then, by judicious presentation of the matter to the state highway commission, state aid was gained on the street construction, which means that the state will pay one-third of its cost.

The state aid was secured last September, four months ago. Since then the matter has been apparently droppd and the street left to build itself. Does this suit Middlesboro citizens? Are they content to let it rest with that? If not, hen let us see who is in fault and remedy conditions as soon as can be.

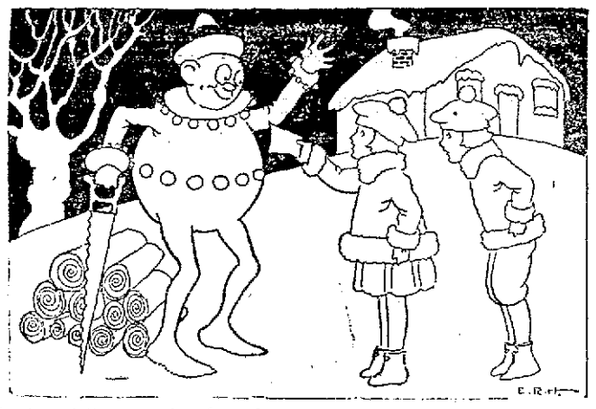
Adventures of The Twins

By Olive Roberts Barton



Here's a letter that has been here most a hundred years," said Mr. Stumps, the fairy postmaster in the hickory tree postoffice. "The more I look at it the less I can read it, and the less I can read it the less I want to look at it."

He handed it over to Nancy and Nick who looked at it with their magical glasses. "Why it's written in Chinee!" declared Nick.

"Then what's to be done?" asked Mr. Stumps in a despairing voice. "Why I couldn't even read a laundry check from a Chinese laundry, to save my life."

Nancy looked again. "It's to Mr. Tinkle T. Tingaling," she said.

"Why, that's the fairy landlord!" cried Nick. "Who can be writing to him from China?"

"And at this time of the year too!" added Mr. Stumps. "Surely nobody is house hunting now. "The snow's not off the ground yet and won't be for weeks 'n'weeks. Some of the wood folk are still in the south, but most of them are in Dreamland. And I don't know of anybody who's gone to China."

"We'll take it to Mr Tingaling at est and knocked at his front door.

Mr. Tingaling was out chopping wood, but he heard them.

"Well, for goodness sake!" he cried once" said Nick. "There is no use in guessing any longer."

So off went the Twins to the fairy landlord's house in Whispering Forjoyfully. "Look who's here! What! A letter! From China! I'll have to read it."

But Nancy and Nick had to help him with their magic glasses. The letter said:

"Dear Mr. Tingaling: I wood like to live in another house. Farmer Brown makes me sit all day on a China egg because I'm a Chinese chicken. Can you fix it? Yours, Mrs. Henrietta Cochin Hen."

"Oh, ho, ho!" laughed the fairy landlord. "I'll have to help her if it's not too late. I never believed in China eggs anyway. Thank you, kiddies, and goodby! Come and see me again soon."

THE JOYS OF PAYING ON THE IN STALLMENT PLAN

Berton Braley's Daily Poem

POSSIBILITIES

By Berton Braley

If I could go
To some place wher the tropic breezes blow,
And where I need not ever fret and labor,
Striving to wax as wealthy as my neighbor;

If I could find
A haven from the cares that vex my mind,
And placidly exist in peace and plenty,
The perfect type of "dolce far niente;"
With bright birds singing in the branches gaily,
While dusky maidens thrummed the ukulele;

If I could lie,
Drowsy and idle, 'neath an azure sky,
Away from all the hurry and hustle,
With never need to worry and hustle;

Could I discover
Some spot where lazy magic seems to hover
In all the air and natures's slumbrous beauty
Made me forget ambition, work and duty—

If I should fare
Forth to a place like that, devoid of care,
I would be happy for a little while,
Loafing about my little lazy isle;

But wouldn't I,
Before a lot of time had drifted by,
Sicken and pine for struggle and for strife,
And for the toil and trouble of this life?
Perhaps I would—I can't be sure about it,
But—well, I doubt it!

CHINATOWN ALICE, who says Dan was father of her child.

DOROTHY, Near their home, a few nights later, Kate and her father find an unconscious man, the victim of an auto crash. They carry him in, he recovers and gives his name as James Latham. Kate goes motoring her to the laundry of SING LOY, with whom Alice lives, to offer the latter her friendship, but Alice makes no direct answer. On their way home Latham suddenly turns to Kate with the words: "I love you."

GO ON WITH THE STORY

Kate wondered if she had heard aright.

Then Latham repeated the words: "I love you dear."

Kate was thrilled. She had been thinking of Dan, reliving some of their hours together. And she had loved him, still loved him. Yet the voice of the man beside her played upon her emotions and set her heart singing. She marveled at herself. Could there ever be an affection which could take the place of Dan's? Could there be a second love as big and with such possibilities for happiness?

Kate wondered. When she spoke it was to answer Latham with a question.

"Do women ever love a second time?" She didn't wait for an answer but continued. "Every bit of affection I had to give was given once. And I wondered if, given, it can still be kept? Or if a new affection can spring from ashes of the old?

"Or—isn't love a permanent thing? Must we face the fact that it never can be fully promised, never fully depended upon? Is the love that is given me today liable to belong to some other woman tomorrow? And have I no right to call that other woman a thief; no right to blame my former lover for faithlessness?"

"Don't ask me to solve problems which the whole race is at work on and for which generation after generation has found no solution," Latham said when Kate stopped speaking. "I know, dear, only that I love you."

"And I can't seem to see far into the future without you. Don't tell me that I haven't known you long enough. If you care, you care if you've known only one day or one million days. If you don't care you just don't care and all of eternity couldn't change it."

"I think you must be right," Kate was thoughtful, "but you are almost saying that affection is an uncompassed thing, that it can't be promised permanently."

"I know," said Latham. "I wouldn't have the courage to say to you, 'I shall love you always,' because perhaps the thing we call love is fitful, subject to physical change. But I could say to you truthfully that my sense of honor would come to the rescue when love threatened failure of faith.

"I could say, too," he continued, "and honestly, that you would always be the one all-desirable woman because you have the spirituelle charm that would anchor me when your physical loveliness ceased to intrigue. Lady, my Lady Fair, I do love you!"

He was bending toward her. The car was moving slowly.

"Oh, Jimmy —Jimmy — don't!" breathlessly. "I'm half persuaded, half afraid—give me time to think!"

A COOPERATION FABLE

Said a wise old bee at the close of day;
"This colony business don't pay.
I put my honey in that old hive
That others may eat and live and thrive;
And I do more work in a day, by gee,
Than some of the other fellows do in three.
I toil and worry and save and hoard
And all I get is my room and board.
It's me for a hive I can run myself.
And me for the sweets of my hard earned pelf."

So the old bee flew to a meadow lone,
And started a business all his own.
He gave no thought to the buzzing clan,
But all intent on his selfish plan,
He lived the life of a hermit free,
"Ah, this is great," said the wise old bee.

But the summer waned and the days grew drear,
And the bee wailed as he dropped a tear;
For the varmints gobbled his little store,
And his wax played out and his heart was sore,
So he winged his way to the old home band,
And took his meals at the Helping Hand.
Alone, our worth is of little worth;
Together we are the lords of the earth.
So it's all for each and it's each for all—
United stand, or divided fall.

Good Manners

On the sidewalk:

Keep to the right. Two or more persons walking abreast, should break ranks, to give a fair share of room to others moving in the opposite direction or coming up from behind. Don't block the walk by stopping to chat; keep moving even if it takes you a little out of your way.

A loud jolly "hello" is all right in the country, but in the city noisy greetings are out of place.

Odd Fellows Banquet Next Friday Night

Two hundred reservations have already been made for the Odd Fellows banquet which will be held at the Hotel Cumberland next Friday evening. Members of the lodge from neighboring places have been invited to come, and Grand Master J. C. Holburn, of Eminence, and Grand Secretary Elliott, of Louisville, will be there for the occasion.

Eastern Star Reception For Mrs. Albert Seale

At the close of their regular meeting at the Masonic hall last night, Middlesboro Chapter No. 335, Order of Eastern Star, gave an informal reception in honor of Mrs. Albert Seale, Worthy Matron of the Chapter, formerly Miss Ethel Buchanan, whose marriage was a recent social event. After unique and entertaining contests, Secretary Joseph A. Smith made an appropriate commentation upon the occasion and presented Mrs. Seale with a beautiful silver basket, the gift of the members of the Eastern Star. Refreshments were served by the social committee. Present were: Mrs. Albert Seale, Miss Mabel Salmon, Mis Bernice Vaughn, Miss Lelia Buchanan, Mrs. Edith Gray, Mrs. Raymond Haynes, Mrs. Douglas Pollitte, Mrs. G. E. Huddleston, Mrs. Nora Carter, Mrs. John Johnson, Mrs. H. H. Tinsley, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph A. Smith, Mr. and Mrs. M. H. Zauber, L. K. Webster, and J. M. Vaughn.

TURN HAIR DARK WITH SAGE TEA

If Mixed with Sulphur It Darkens So Naturally Nobody Can Tell

The old-time mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur for darkening gray, streaked and faded hair is grandmother's recipe, and folks are again using it to keep their hair a good, even color, which is quite sensible, as we are living in an age when a youthful appearance is of the greatest advantage.

Nowadays, though, we don't have the troublesome task of gathering the sage and the mussy mixing at home. All drug stores sell the ready-to-use product, improved by the addition of other ingredients, called "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound." It is very popular because nobody can discover it has been applied. Simply moisten your comb or a soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair disappears, but what delights the ladies with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound, is that, besides beautifully darkening the hair after a few applications, it also produces that soft lustre and appearance of abundance which is so attractive.

GUESSING CONTEST FOR FORDSON DAY

Middlesboro Hardware Co. Offers Prizes for Correct Guess of Links in Chain

To those whom the element of chance has an almost irrestible appeal, will be offered an opportunity to indulge this taste at the store of the Middlesboro Hardware company on January 24 which is national Fordson day. Though the day has been especially planned for the hundreds of farmers that are expected to be visitors in the city that day, local men, woman, boys and girls will be allowed to share in the unique guessing contests.

That which will try the ingenuity and guessing ability of those entering the contest is a large number of chains which have been arranged in one of the windows. To the visiting farmer who guesses the nearest to the corect number of links in the chains will be awarded a handsome riding bridle.

A splendid pocket knife will be given to the local man or boy who makes the nearest correct guess concerning the number of links in the chain. Women and girls living in the city may come in the other contest. This same bunch of chains will be used in their contest and a beautiful pair of manicure scissors will be awarded the winner.

Of course the seemingly innumerable links will be a stumbling block to the majority of those entering the contests, since but one winner in each class will be possible, all who visit the store are certain of having a good time.

The Middlesboro Hardware company is one of the oldest hardware dealers in the city, their large patronage having built up by the excellent quality of service that they render. No small part of their trade is drawn from the farmers and they always carry a full line of goods such as farmers use.

At present they have on hand a large number of plows so that visiting farmers may have the opportunity of doing their buying early or looking over the stocks so that they will know what to buy later on. Also a large stock of other agricultural implements may be seen at the store.

The event promises to be one of the most interesting as well as the most profitable to the up-to-date farmer that has ever been held in the city. considering the large number of invitations sent out, it is expected that the city will be a mecca for these visitors.

FORD PLANS END OF WAR FOREVER

World-Wide Industrial Expansion Program Urged By Famous Manufacturer

By Associated Press.

DETROIT, Jan. 19.—Henry Ford's industrial expansion program is world-wide, not national, in scope, and has been undertaken with the underlying motive of educating the people of the world to such a degree and of making them so prosperous "that wars will be ended forever."

This was disclosed today as the motive back of the Detroit manufacturer's desire to extend his operations into every part of the world.

Mr. Ford believes that "a busy prosperous people do not stop work to make war; they go to war only when it is necessary to protect their homes or their ideas when these are menaced by some more idle nation.

"When the time comes that everyone, everywhere, has a job, and lasting prosperity has been created as a result, the people of any nation will be too busy and too happy to even think about war," the manufacturer says. Therefore, it is pointed out by those in close touch with him, he is convinced that world industrial expansion, bringing with it prosperity for all peoples in all lands, automatically will make war impossible.

The manufacturer is known to believe that the automobile is the agent that will usher in the millenium of world peace.

"When the people of any country get to understand automobiles and use them daily, they will know considerable more about machinery," he declares. "Then, in the course of a few years, agricultural machinery will appear in that country. Hundreds of bushels of grain will be produced where only a few were grown before. In many foreign countries the farmers know nothing of machinery. Probably they will not know until they have learned to use automobiles.

"Machinry will help make any country prosperous.

"There is another reason why world wide use of motor cars will help to end war. That is the increase of travel on the part of the persons of any country.

"In Mexico, villages fight one another. If we could give every man in those villages an automobile, let him travel from his own home town to the other towns, and permit him to find out that his neighbors, at heart, were his friends, rather than his enemies, Mexico would be pacified for all time.

"Russia could be saved by the advent of the automobile. It would educate the peasants by instructions in machinery. Other machinery would be brought in to till the fertile acres if the peasants were once taught to use it. There would be no more hunger anywhere in that country.

"The same is true to a greater or less degree, of every country under the sun."

Mr. Ford, according to those close to him, has come to look upon automobiles, not merly as the products of his factories or the plants of other motor companies but as a means of civilizing and pacifying every part of the world.

AN OLD RECIPE TO DARKEN HAIR

Sage Tea and Sulphur Turns Gray, Faded Hair Dark and Glossy

Almost everyone knows that Sage Tea and Sulphur, properly compounded, brings back the natural color and lustre to the hair when faded, streaked or gray. Years ago the only way to get this mixture was to make it at home, which is mussy and troublesome.

Nowadays we simply ask at any drug store for "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound." You will get a large bottle of this old-time recipe improved by the addition of other ingredients, at very little cost. Everybody uses this preparation now, because no one can possibly tell that you darkened your hair, as it does it so naturally and evenly. You dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair disappears, and after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully dark, thick and glossy and you look years younger.
